James "Jimmy" Marcello was the last of the old-school Chicago Outfit bosses. He ruled the Outfit from 1993 until his incarceration in 2007. Marcello was a ruthless and violent gangster who oversaw a vast criminal empire that included gambling, racketeering, and murder. He was also a key figure in the Outfit's decades-long battle with the FBI.

Marcello was born in Chicago in 1942. He grew up in a tough neighborhood and was involved in petty crime from a young age. In the 1960s, he joined the Outfit and quickly rose through the ranks. By the early 1980s, he was one of the Outfit's top earners.

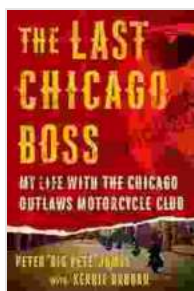

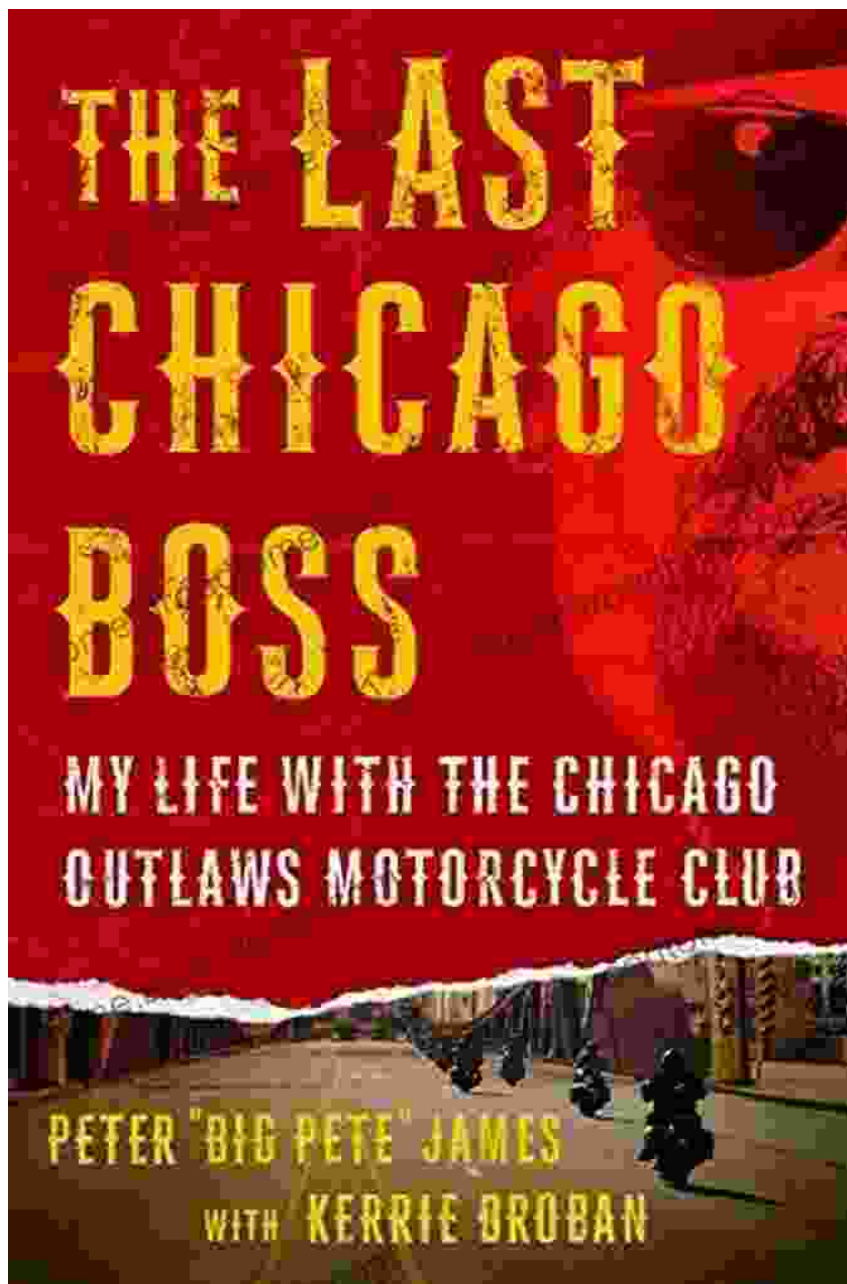

In 1993, Marcello became the Outfit's boss. He immediately set about consolidating his power and eliminating his rivals. He Free Downloaded the murders of several high-ranking Outfit members, including his former mentor, Joey Aiuppa. Marcello also expanded the Outfit's criminal empire, moving into new areas such as drug trafficking and money laundering.

The FBI was determined to bring Marcello down. In 2007, he was arrested and charged with racketeering, murder, and conspiracy. He was convicted and sentenced to life in prison.

The Last Chicago Boss is the definitive account of Marcello's life and career. Based on extensive research and interviews with law enforcement officials, journalists, and Marcello's associates, the book provides a gripping and unforgettable portrait of a man who was both feared and respected in the criminal underworld.
